

Your Weekly Security Awareness Newsletter #201

#WeeklyCybersecurityTip: Use long Passphrases.

To receive these direct to your inbox, sign up here.

10 January 2022

1 Heap-overflow Vulnerability Affects Multiple VMware Products

A heap overflow vulnerability has been detected recently in multiple VMware products, that has been tracked as CVE-2021-22045. The VMware products that are affected by this heap overflow vulnerability are:- VMware ESXiVMware WorkstationVMware FusionVMware Cloud Foundation However, VMware has ahead...

Read more

2 How to Protect Your Company from Cyber Attacks and Cyber Fraud

Being a business owner is not easy. You need to do many different things, ranging from expanding your business and building business relationships to ensuring that your business is safe from cyber attacks and cyber fraud. When it comes to cyber security, it goes way beyond installing an antivirus on...

Read more

3 Cyberattackers Hit Data of 80K Fertility Patients

The protected health information of nearly 80,000 patients of Fertility Centers of Illinois (FCI) may have been pawed over by cyber intruders following a cyberattack. FCI runs four clinics across Illinois. According to the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) Office for Civil Rights' d...

Read more

4 New iOS vulnerability DoS bug revealed

A new denial of service (DoS) vulnerability dubbed "doorLock" was recently revealed in Apple HomeKit, impacting iOS 14.7 through 15.2. Apple HomeKit is a software framework that lets iPhone and iPad users control smart home appliances from their devices. According to the researcher who disclosed the...

Read more

Keepnet Labs Limited © 2021 - <https://www.keepnetlabs.com>

Subscribe to our newsletter to receive regular information on contemporary anti-phishing tricks, industry-leading solutions. You may unsubscribe at any time. For more information, check out our Privacy Policy.

keepnetlabs

keepnetlabs

keepnetlabsltd

keepnetlabs

keepnetlabs.com